Social Media Policy

It is important to maintain good boundaries to protect the therapeutic relationship. While I have a presence on Facebook and other social media sites, I cannot accept any personal friend requests from current or past clients. If you end me a friend request, I will have to ignore it as it is important to maintain proper boundaries between therapist and client. This is nothing personal and is no reflection on our relationship as therapist and client. You can, however, subscribe to the Erik Young Therapy facebook page to receive updates on talks, seminars and new products.
